THE REBELLION AT THE VIRGINIA MILI-'aroline, one of the twenty seven cadets ex pelled from the Virginia Military Institute, mas at Green's Mansion House to day. He ays that the cadets of the third class only asked for an extension of one day in which to prepare for the examination in analitical and descriplive geometry which had been granted the class the previous year, but the extension being refused by General Smith, the superintendent of the institute, the whole class, with but three or four exceptions, declined to appear for examination at all. They were then ordered under arrest until General Smith returned from Stauntor; but being informed that they would be dismissed when the superintendent returned they refused to obey the order on the ground that if they were to be dismissed any way they did not see the n cossity of submitting to arrect. They then left the institute and marched up into the towa. When General Smith returned an order was issued, dismissing the twenty s yen rebellions students - Cadet Allison found no fault with the dismissil, but thought that the necessity for the dismissal could have been abviated by simply granting a privilege which had been allowed to the same class the year previous. He seemed to think that if the remost had been preferred at any other time it would have been granted; but as General Smith we leaving the institute in a burry, he had no nume to attend to it. Cadet Albem said be and another codet named Price were regarded as the leaders of the rebellion, but such was not the case, as they only stood by the decision of the meeting of the class, which was that they were not ready for the examination and they would not appear. He did not speak harshly of General Smith, but rather as peared to have a tack opinion of him.

THE GAME OF FIFTEEN."-The "Game of refreen" has at last reached Alexandria, Signs are displayed in the windows of the stores to the effect that the "Game of Fifteen," has net been received. The prospect is that hed option will be placed in the background, and the "Game of Fifteen" came in and take to place. The lever has taken held of the people, and wherever one goes the only thing that is talked about is this everlasting "Came Every little boy one meets on the treet have box with fifteen blocks of wood in being name red from one to fitteen, and the hist thing he says to his playmate is, "I'll bet at can't make these blocks come straight." then the trial commences; so that all the way an King street aquads of boys can be seen canding, watching intently one of their number, endeavoring to n a inulate the blecks into regular order. Not only boys, but mer; young men, old men, young ladies and old ladies, all on determined to slide these fifteen blocks a numerical order without "jumping." The scarry the game with them just as if it was a smelling bottle, and if at any time they al bad out comes the game, and all complaints | ble proacher. are largetten. If a young man goes to see a lady he is compelled to spend the whole even argin a vain attempt to arrange those little theks in regular order. The game is simply one of chance, and if by accident the blocks, are arranged correctly the probability is that the mover could not bring about the same result again. The excitement will soon die out, for it is too great to last long.

C. & O. CANAL -The Board of Public Works of Maryland, met the president and directors of the Chesapeake and Obio Canal at Antapolis, last night, to consult in regard to tolls on the canal for the coming seasor. The whole state of the trade was gone over, but, twick to the unsettled condition of affairs in the mining region, the rates for the canal were not fixed. It is ex-pected the tells will be emsiderably increased, both on the canal and railroad. The coal company presidents agree in anticipating that the coal trade will be the largest the coming season site: 1874. It is said that on account of the iccreased rates and the revenues to come from the emerged trade this season, the Bahi nere and Ohio road and the canal have agreed to increase the pay of their employees.
